

RECLAIM THE NIGHT

Reclaim the Night

Inspired by women's marches in the USA, Reclaim the Night began in the UK as a response to the advice given to women around their safety during the case of the serial killer, Peter Sutcliffe. Women were encouraged to stay at home in the evenings and not go out after dark. The first protest march was on 12th November 1977

16 Days of Activism

The United Nation's international campaign 16 Days of Activism Against Gender-Based Violence, takes place each year from 25 November (International Day for the Elimination of Violence Against Women) until 10 December (International Human Rights Day).

The campaign began in 1991 to unite and amplify calls to end violence against women and girls. Each year the campaign strengthens movements and organisations around the world, and draws the attention of governments to the critical issue of gender-based violence.
